Why All The New Enhancements?

"Before anything else, preparation is key."

- Alexander Graham Bell

The need for an efficient backup and an equally effective recovery plan is now more important than ever. The time it takes to restore your data and the quality of that data is extremely important. Ensuring your office has a clean copy of your data saves time and money in the event your office experiences events requiring data recovery. While you may not be able to prevent the unavoidable from occurring, you can have a recovery strategy in place.

Here Are Some Potential Real-World Threats To Your Data:

Backup failures, corrupt data, misplaced or mishandled media, ransomware attacks, computer viruses, fires, and natural disasters all place your data at risk.

Redundant fail-safes should always be part of your data recovery strategy.
